LSP 112: Focal Point Seminar
The Fifty Year History of Doctor Who: Production and Fandom

I will answer every email I get within 24 hours (weekday). If you do not hear from me within one day, you can assume that I did not get your email. You may also contact me via Twitter (@pbooth81).

Course Description:
This course offers an introduction to different types of critical lenses, through which students will examine the television program Doctor Who. But Doctor Who is more than just a television program; it is a brand, a multi-media experience, a cult object, and a lens through which viewers can learn about the past fifty years of cultural history. Through screenings, readings, and discussion, students will explore Doctor Who in order to learn different characteristics of television criticism. Students will be encouraged to develop a critical voice of their own, all the while learning to understand the popularity and cultural impact of this important television milestone.

Course Rationale:
Doctor Who is a British television program that started in 1963. Throughout its fifty year history, the show has changed and adjusted its focus, style, narrative, genre, and audience multiple times over. For this reason, Doctor Who provides a useful text through which changing patterns of cultural criticism can be enacted. Furthermore, Doctor Who is more than just a television program – with multiple books, comics, web series, fan work, games, and physical locations, it is a multi-media experience. In fact, today’s Doctor Who brand is one of the most popular and viable across the world. Doctor Who is historical; Doctor Who is contemporary.

This focal point seminar seeks to explore the various cultural lenses through which Doctor Who – and through Doctor Who, television itself – can be critiqued. More people can— and do—write critically about television, both in a scholarly setting and in a popular press setting. But what makes a good critic? How to differentiate the quality opinions from the less-thoughtful? What’s the difference between a review and a criticism when it comes to writing about television? At the end of the course, students will come away with a better understanding of the role of television and critical thinking in their own lives and become more thoughtful and engaged critics.

DePaul Liberal Studies course:
As part of DePaul’s Liberal Studies course, this course fulfills the learning outcomes outlined by the Liberal Studies Council. At the end of the course,

1. Students will discuss and analyze work from at least three different fields in their written work for the course.
2. Students will participate actively in advancing the collective intellectual understanding of the course topic through class discussions.
3. Students will be able to distinguish between primary and secondary sources, and to assess varying degrees of mediation and interpretation in specific source materials.
4. Students will construct arguments based on evidence and the work and interpretations of other sources.
5. Students will revise papers in response to the instructor’s comments.
6. Students will produce a project with a central argument, in which all parts of the project support the central argument

Writing Expectations:
In addition, the Focal Point Seminar is designated a writing intensive course in the Liberal Studies Program; assignments are designed to develop writing skills. A minimum of 12-20 pages of writing is required with at least one piece of formal writing that goes through a revision process based on feedback from the instructor.

Class Readings
Required to Buy: (DePaul Loop bookstore, or online)

Recommended to Buy (DePaul Loop bookstore, or online)

Screenings to purchase:

For this course students will be expected to watch episodes of Doctor Who out of class. The most cost effective way to do this is to purchase a subscription to Netflix or Amazon Prime. Students may also wish to purchase the DVD box sets of Doctor Who: The Doctors Revisited (vol 1 is Doctors 1-4; vol 2 is Doctors 5-8; vol 3 is Doctors 9-11).

Additional readings will be available via D2L. Readings should be done before class on the day that they are due.

Grading and Assignments:

Student grades are based on 600 points.
- Short Syntheses: (10 x 10 points each): 100 points
- Media Studies Paper: 100 points
- Cultural Studies Paper: 100 points
- Philosophy Paper: 100 points
- Final synthesis: 50 points
- Peer Review: 50 points
- Participation: 100 points

Short Syntheses
Each week, students will watch out-of-class at least one episode of Doctor Who, and in 300-500 words, synthesize the episode with the readings and in-class screening due that week. Reflection papers can be reused (with revision) for the three Criticism papers. Please see D2L and the assignment sheet for more detailed instructions.

Media Studies Paper (Feb 02, 3pm)
In 1000-1200 words, students will write an analysis of an episode of Doctor Who, using two of the following Media Studies techniques:
- Auteur Theory
- Political Economic Analysis
- Narrative Analysis
- Genre Criticism

Students should include a thesis statement that describes why Media Studies is a useful tool for analyzing Doctor Who in this context. Please see D2L and the assignment sheet for more detailed instructions.

You will rewrite this paper (due Feb 16, 3pm), taking into account the feedback from students and your professor.

Cultural Studies Paper (Due Mar 02, 3pm)
In 1000-1200 words, students will write an analysis of an episode of Doctor Who, using two of the following Cultural Studies techniques:
- Rhetorical Criticism
- Representational Analysis
- Fan Studies

Students should include a thesis statement that describes why Cultural Studies is a useful tool for analyzing Doctor Who in this context. Please see D2L and the assignment sheet for more detailed instructions.

Philosophy Paper (Due Mar 16, 2:40pm)
In 1000-1200 words, students will write an analysis of an episode of Doctor Who, using two of the following philosophical lenses:
- Aesthetic Analysis
- Postmodern Analysis
- Ethical Analysis

Students should include a thesis statement that describes why Philosophy is a useful tool for analyzing Doctor Who in this context. Please see D2L and the assignment sheet for more detailed instructions.
Final Synthesis
The final paper for this class asks students to pick an episode of Doctor Who not used in class and decide what attributes of the episode would be appropriate for a Media Studies analysis, which would be appropriate for a Cultural Studies analysis, and which would be appropriate for a Philosophical analysis. This short synthesis should be about 1000 words. Please see D2L and the assignment sheet for more detailed instructions.

Paper Revision (Due Feb 16, 3pm)
Taking into account my feedback as well as the peer review feedback of your colleagues, students will revise the Media Studies Paper. Although it is not required, students may also choose to revise the Cultural Studies Paper. Please see D2L and the assignment sheet for more detailed instructions.

Peer Review (Due Feb 09, 3pm)
You will read and critique (but not grade) another students' Media Studies Paper. Reviews will be anonymous. I will try to pair majors together so that majors will review each others' papers. Your job in peer review is to (a) compliment, (b) critique, and (c) complement; that is, you should note where the students’ paper was well-done, where (specifically) it could be improved, and give some tips/hints for future work. When you receive the peer review on your own paper, you may find it helpful to integrate that feedback into your other television criticism paper. You will rewrite your Media Studies Paper, taking into account both the instructor feedback as well as the other students’ feedback, for a higher grade. Please note that the peer review should not offer a grade on the Media Studies Paper, and the professor will grade the Media Studies Papers as well. Please see D2L and the assignment sheet for more detailed instructions.
